

Butterfly

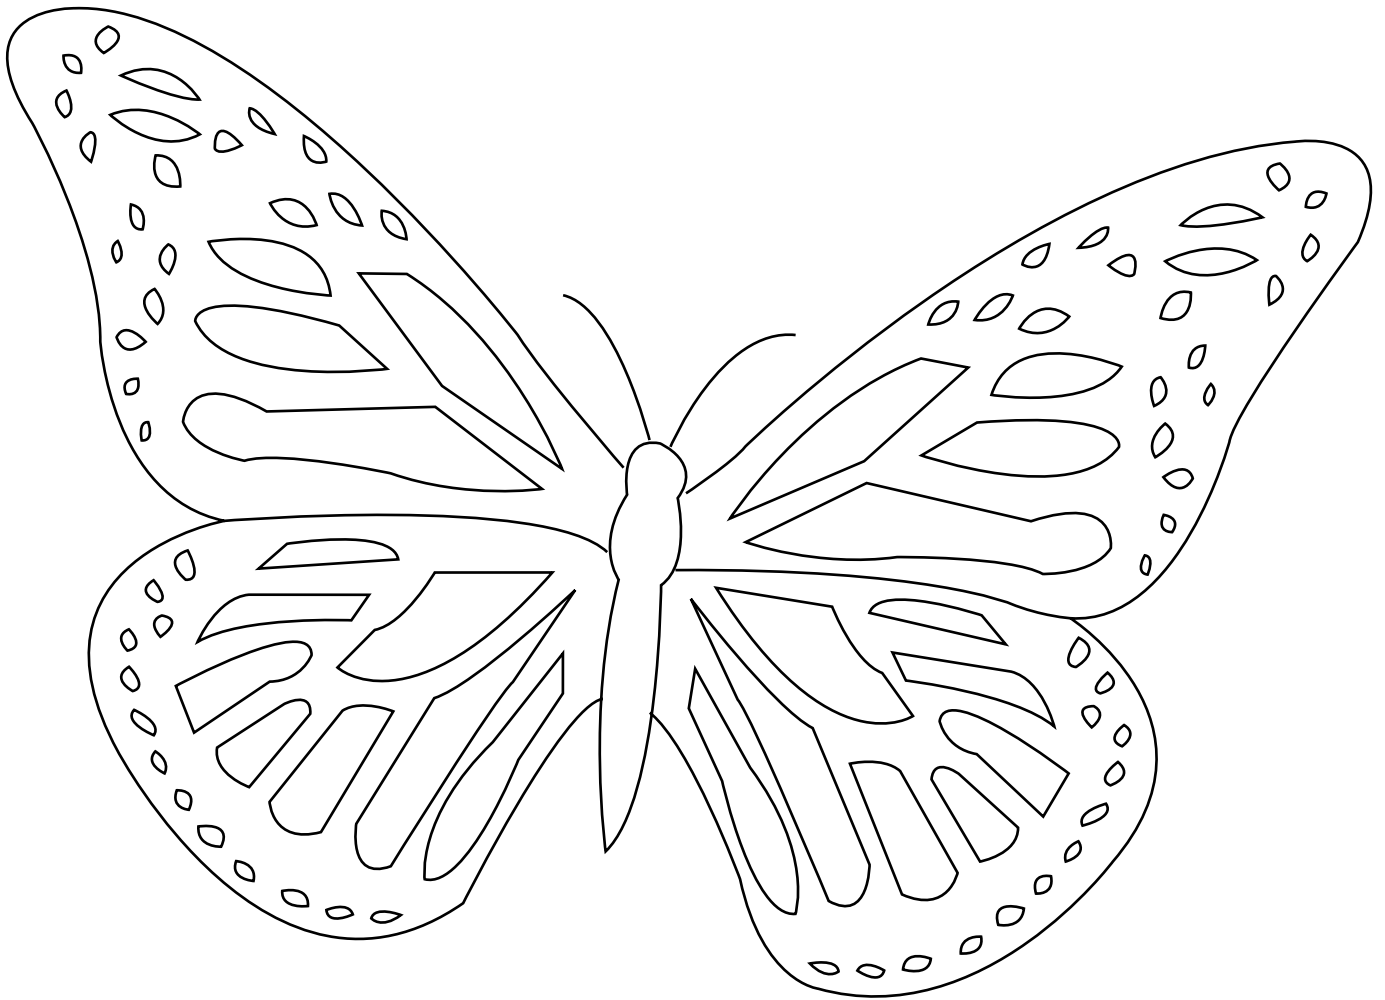

Butterflies have four wings.
They have two forewings and two hindwings.

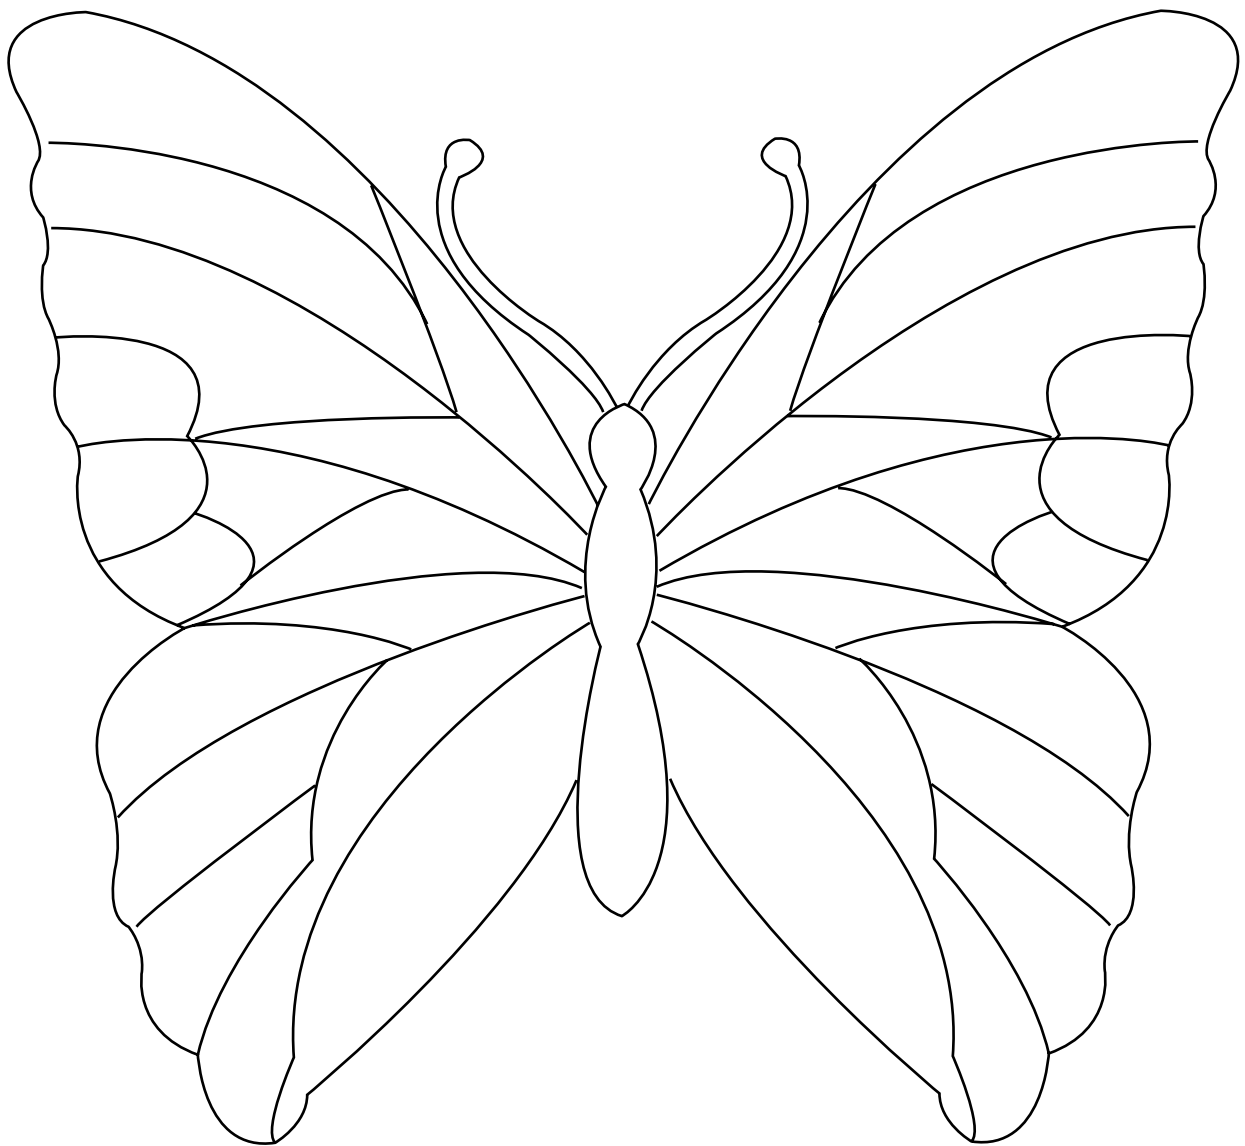

Butterflies drink the nectar from flowers.
They also drink the liquid from rotting fruit.

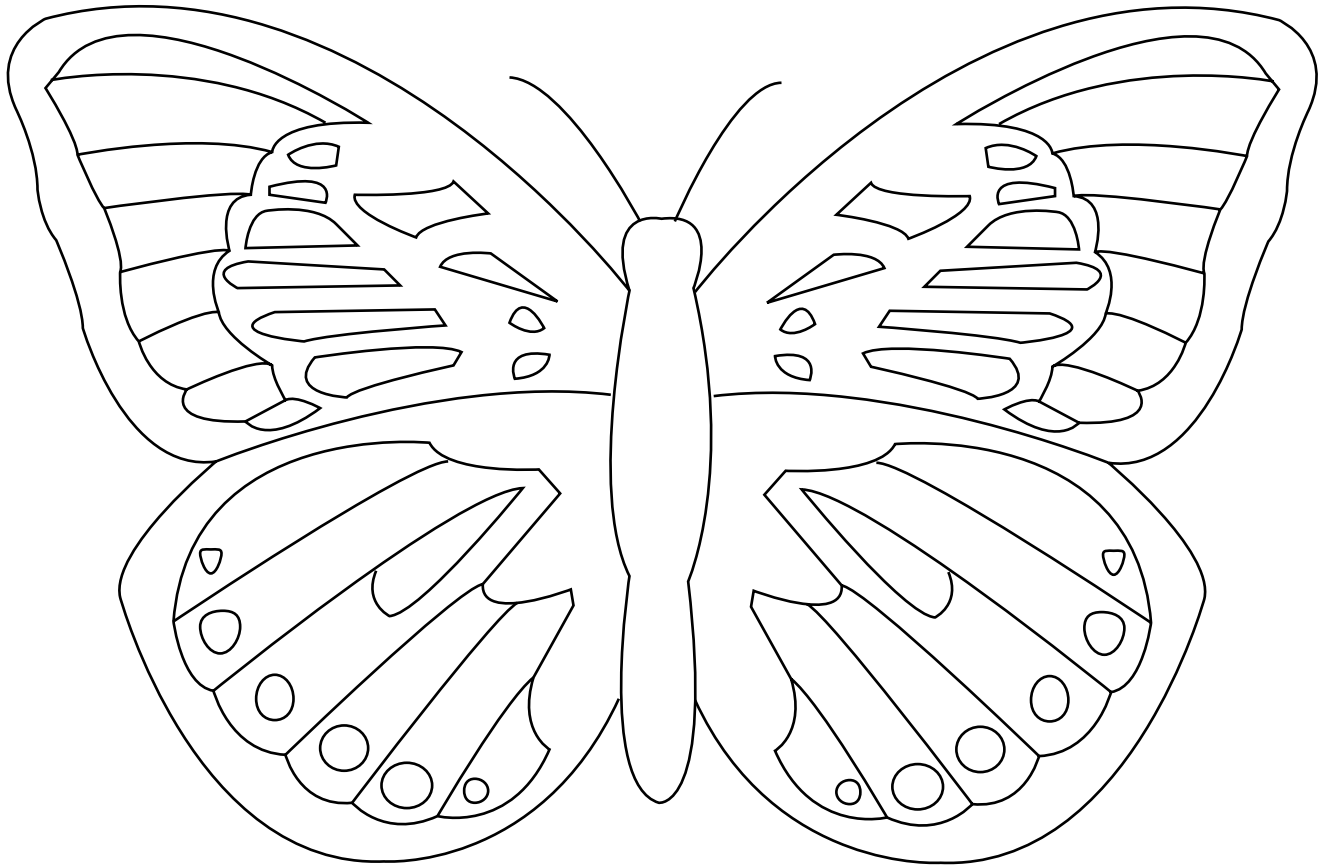

Many butterflies are becoming endangered because of pollution and because they can't find the flower nectar that they need to eat.

To help the butterflies, people plant butterfly gardens.
These gardens help feed and shelter the butterflies.

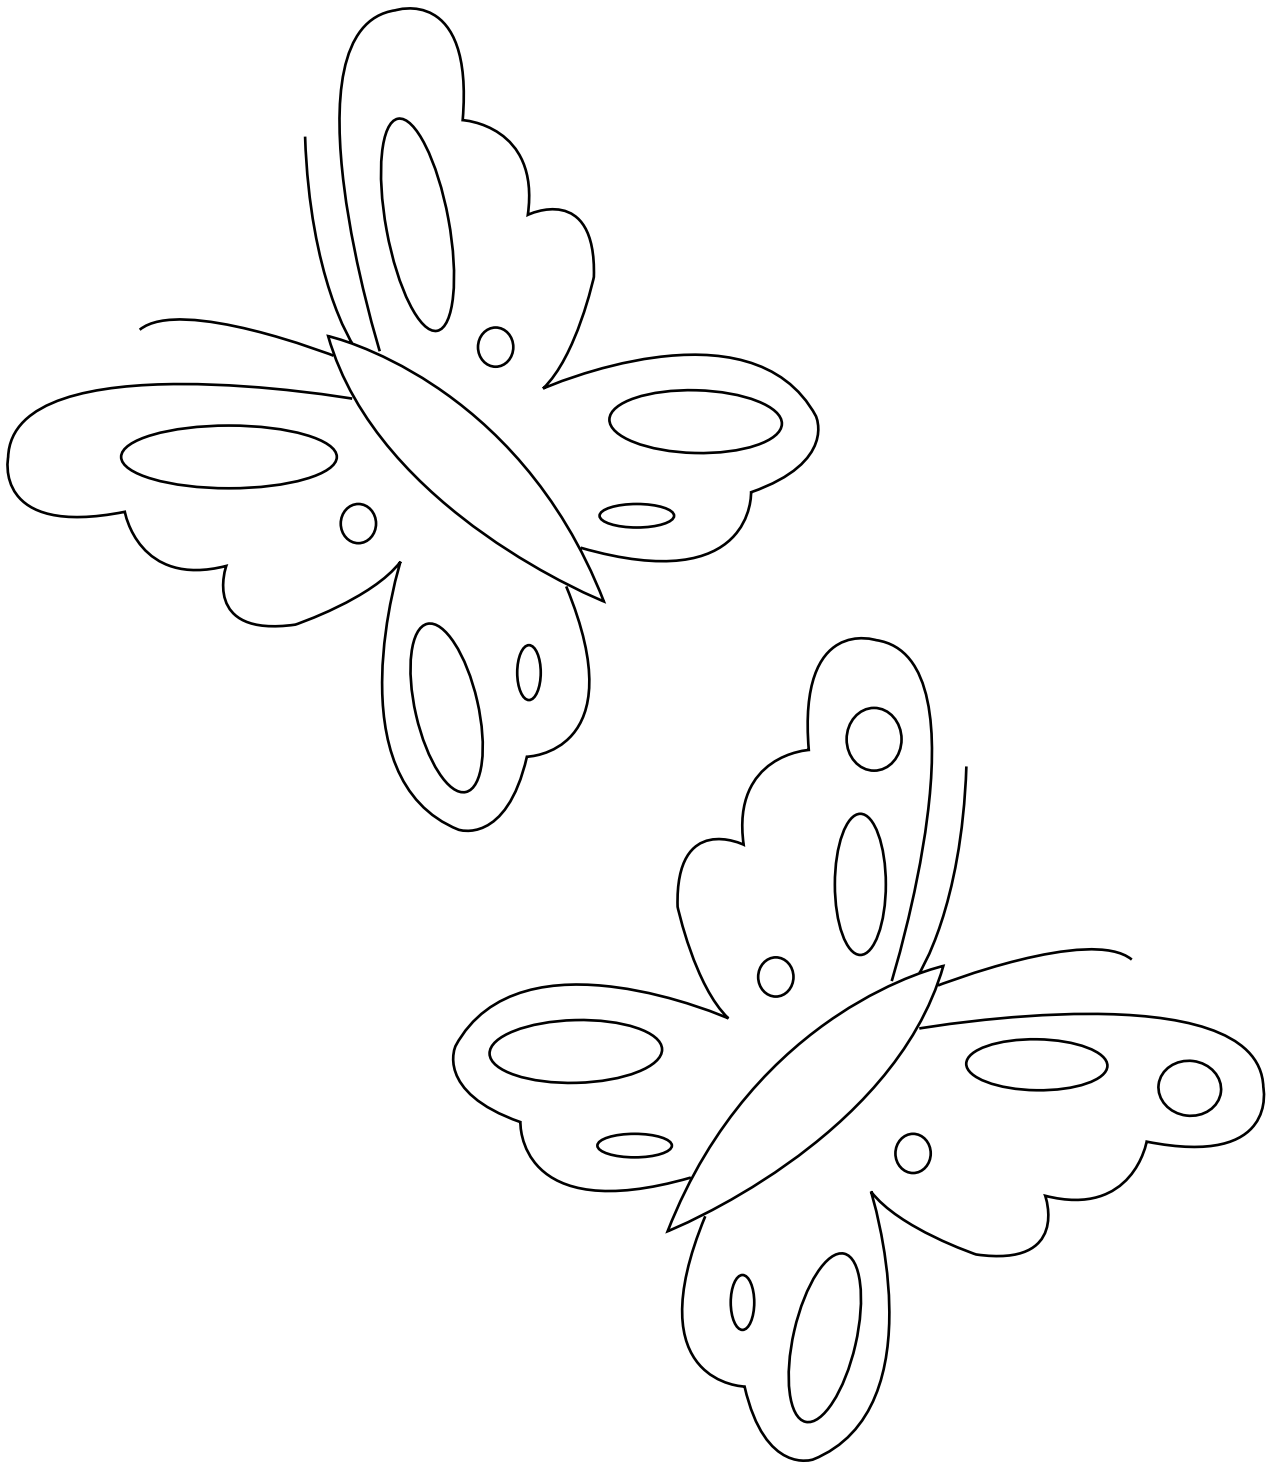

Butterfly gardens can be large or small. They can even be grown in window boxes!

Here is a list of some of the plants that butterflies like:

Butterfly Weed
Petunia
Annual Aster
French Marigold
Nasturtium
Peony
Hollyhock
Queen Anne's Lace

What is different about these two butterflies?

How many hearts do you see? Count them.

